Of the full Moone Eclipsed.

The. xx. day of December. x. minutes after three of the clocke before day, as the Moone is then at full : so she wyl therewithall begin (peeteemeale) to lose her lyght, welneare to the darkenyng of her whole body : when erstwoones by lytle and lytle, she wyl repayre her beames to her best beautie.

The effectes cannot surpise the cause (which is naturall) and therefore the euentures may not well unnaturallly exceede in dyre afflictions : but yf any such be, it is rather lykely to happen on water breed creatures, and thynges pertinent to the Sea, then on earthly Impes, the Eclipses chauncing in Cancer, the sole house of the Moone, and she chiefe gouernesse of Fluddes, and Streames.

A Prognostication,

A prediction of Winter.

This Quarter for varietie of weather, is lyke to differ from the ordinarie course of some former Winters : by meane of thunders, lyghninges, violent wyndes, styrring vp stormes, tempestes, and hurtfull floodes, with dreadfull accidentes to be seene in the ayre, as felt on the earth, to the losse of Cattle, Damage of Corne, and making dearth of Victualles. Sickneses impertinent to this season, wyl sharply affect the people, (but chiefly the masculine sex.)

A prediction of the Spring.

As this season seemes threatened with a distemperance of dyeth (for the most part) so the rage of thunders, and lyghninges, (with the inmoderate sway of wynde and tempest, with the violent descent of ouer gulshing stormes betweene whyles) wyl inferre shrewde hinderance to the endeauours of the mayde Spring, and hurt of Cattle : which momentarie changes, wyl encrease the vigoꝝ of Orange

Gray. 1591.

strange sicknesses & daynely, and in sundry wyse to annoy the people with hot fumes, sharpe Cas-tharres, and other deadly maladies (much grie-uinge Collics that bringe forth, and give sucke.) The trafique by Sea, is lyke to continue very dangerous by reason of feytraigne discordes, to the slaughter of dyuers their owne neyghbours, and neate alyes.

A prediction of Sommer.

Therow an unnaturall distemperance of corruptible matter, the increase of creeping Mooomes, Cankers, Caterpillers, Flyes, and such lyke wyl abide, to the deuouring of the brauest branches, yering buddes, sweetest blossome, & vntymely cropping the fayre greene leaves from hedge and byer, as also offende the Husbandman in his Haruest, and hinderance to his Bees. The Travellers wylleme yll distrest with sicknesses afore ment, as also with payne in the Head, Eyes, Necke, and squinanci of the Throate: and young Chylde to suffer by Mooomes in their belly unto death.

A Prognostication.

A prediction of Autumne or Haruest.

This Quarter, by too much obscuritie of the aye, is lykely very tymely to fall into a winterlyke temperament, with a variable disposition of weather, not onely to the confirmation of former infirmities, but also to the new engendryng of paynfull Bustles, Swelling Ulcers, rotten Impostumes, & other inflamaci-ous, and most greuous sores, much pester-yng women that breede, and geue sucke. The brabbes and brabbes of forraigne Regions, by the ruyne of some romyshe Commaunders (and other slaughters) may happely for some tyme become quiet, with a consequent of some beniuolent applause, not before thought of.
